What is God up to these days?

The Very Rev. Sam Lloyd, Dean of the National Cathedral, says the Church is in transition (there's an understatement), and invites us to look at what's happening in the world today. There's a shift from national to global consciousness, human beings are migrating as never before, economies are interlocking, and institutions are being restructured. In the U.S. we are moving ever more rapidly from rural to urban communities, from stable families and neighborhoods to isolation and anonymity, and from an Anglo-European majority to no majority (and we should note that these things are happening faster in Northern Virginia than in most parts of the country). As a result the Church is changing too. Leadership is fast becoming less hierarchical and more egalitarian, emphasis is more on mission than institutional maintenance, congregations - and different faiths - are becoming less competitive and more collaborative.

That's a lot to deal with. No wonder some of us feel a little shaky on our feet.

We must wonder, says Dean Lloyd, "what God is calling the Church to be? Where is the Holy Spirit leading us, back or to something new?" Without a certain sense of how things will evolve he believes the emergent Church will be more intentional in keeping Sabbath time, being a Christian family, and giving sacrificially. In addition, he acknowledges that the Church which was once at the center of society must now speak and work at the margins of society (as our Savior did).

And to put all of this in perspective, remember, no matter how much we may want things to stay the same, change happens; we cannot prevent it. We will have to let go of some important things, but new gifts will be given. God's grace will prevail. Therefore, we can respond to the changes faithfully, optimistically, and bravely. We can be reassured that the essential elements of our faith will remain, even as we come to new understanding of their applications. Sacramental worship will transcend and keep us grounded. Mission will keep us focused. We are still God's people, created in the image of God, redeemed by God in Jesus Christ, filled with God's Holy Spirit, and promised a place in God's kingdom.

The Big Stuff, the Really Important Stuff, will not change. Hang onto that.

Jr. Brad

Finding my way Home in Northern Virginia

Up until a month ago, I drove to St. Timothy's every day from Arlington, coming in from exit 11 on the Toll Road and down Spring Street. I rarely veered off that path except to make visits to people in Herndon. Since Jay and I moved to Reston at the end of May, living in this area has given me a different perspective on St. Timothy's.

From Day 1, we began exploring (i.e. getting lost). We first explored the Mega stores of Fair Oaks, Reston, Chantilly, and Herndon, all designed to help people "nest," to make their homes a place of refuge in a landscape that is constantly growing and changing. We toured stores ranging from Linens and Things and Home Depot to Dick's Sporting Goods. Like others, we carted items from those huge stores to make our new house feel more like home.

After one harrowing trip to Costco, I followed a friend from St. Tim's back to church during Friday afternoon rush hour. She maneuvered through the back roads, familiar with every twist and turn. Before I knew it, we were on Van Buren Street and the outdoor chapel came into view. The trees, the sprawling acres, and our quiet church on top of the small hill took my breath away. I realized for the first time what a place of peace our church is for many people in the hustle and bustle of Northern Virginia, its endless stores, roads, and cities. Pulling into the long driveway felt like coming home to a place of rest.

At the same time, I have been at St. Tim's long enough to realize that this church is not only a place of peace to which we return. It is also a place of challenge from which we go out. As important as it is to nest and to make our homes places of refuge and hospitality, we are not meant to live in isolation. It would be easy to get overwhelmed by our environment and each to hunker down in our own home.

But as we come to St. Timothy's, God coaxes out of our homes to connect with our neighbors. I recently took another tour, a tour of Reston Interfaith. A member of St. Tim's drove me and John Adams, our summer intern, through neighborhood after wooded neighborhood. We saw day laborers collecting money from jobs to help those among them who have the greatest need; we heard volunteers bantering with homeless friends at the Embry Rucker Shelter, completely at home with each other; we saw children in the Laurel program flushed with excitement, coming back from swimming at a neighborhood pool, and we saw storage units where people from all over Northern Virginia bring items to help those in low-income housing make their homes places of refuge and hospitality. I give thanks that above all, we at St. Timothy's are part of the household of God. I pray that together we can continue to go forth into the world to love and serve the Lord.

Stewardship Ministry Notes

Did You Know.....

Electronic Check or ACH payments may be set up at your bank or online for your offerings and pledges. This may be set up for weekly or monthly giving and there is no charge for this service from your bank. Some banks will let you set this up in person at your local branch while others offer this service for online banking only. Check with your bank to make sure which option is available to you. This service frees you of writing a check weekly or monthly as you indicate to the bank if you want a weekly or monthly payment made and on what day/date. Many of our church members are already using this free service and it benefits you by not having to write additional checks....so check it out!

If your bank requires a check routing number for an electronic payment, you may contact Carol Frost at 703-437-3790 X10 for this.

Vestry Notes from May

* The Vestry approved Keith Sinclair as the new Trustee, to replace Anne Crocker who has moved. The Trustee signs the church's legal documents.

* The Vestry approved replacement of both septic pumps, one of which has failed. Total cost for replacement of both pumps is $7850.00.

* The results of the Stewardship Time/Talent survey have been compiled and passed on to ministry chairs. There were 194 offers of help, including at least one in every category. Thank you!

What: Summer Cook-out Sundays

When: July 1st – August 25th

Where: St. Timothy's Front Yard

Time: 12:15 pm

What's summer without a cook-out? Miserable! So bring your family and friends and join us for a summer cook-out each Sunday after the 11:00 am service, beginning July 1st. Hot dogs/buns, condiments, and drinks will be provided; all we ask is for families to bring a side dish to share (salad, chips, dessert, etc.). And if you forget a side dish, please join us anyway (the principle of loaves and fishes will apply!). We'll have some entertainment for the kids (balls, fribees, etc.) and relaxation for the adults.

We are also looking for families to sponsor a cook-out during the summer. What's involved: bringing and grilling the hot dogs, making lemonade, and setting up. Please sign up in Henry Hall.

Saints Alive.....

This is your opportunity to recognize "saints of God, patient and brave and true" – those joyous saints among us at St. Timothy's. You know them – the "saint" who went the extra mile in support of one of our ministries or the "saint" who quietly did the task no one else wanted to do. We are blessed at St. Timothy's with many wonderful servant-leaders who daily give of their talents and time. Let's celebrate them! It's simple -- nominate your "saint" by emailing the editor (cclattenburg@saint-timothys.org) with the name of the person and one or two sentences on your saint's deeds. Your name will not be published. That's part of the fun – you get to be the unknown angel that recognizes saints alive. Who knows? You may be one, too.

BETH LUMNITZER for the many, many hours she spends behind the scenes keeping the kitchen cleaned up and stocked. Beth helps with a friendly smile and a sunny attitude. If you reach for something that you need in the kitchen, odds are, she put it there! If you leave something behind, she's the one who washed it and put it away!

Challenger Dance

The Holy Spirit was alive and well at this year's Challenger Dance on May 18! Members of the youth group and their parents joined the children from the Challenger Dance in jamming to songs like "YMCA!" and in approaching "the limbo" in creative ways. DJ John Lerch kept the fun music playing as people bent over backwards to avoid hitting the limbo stick, crawled under it, and sailed beneath in motorized wheelchairs. Be on the lookout for another Challenger Dance at St. Tim's in November! All are welcome to join in the dancing and fellowship.

A Stewardship Message

Does the Bible really address the topic of money? Isn't the Bible just about religious matters?

It is often thought that the Bible has only to do with so-called religious matters, e.g., church attendance, individual conversion and personal piety. But this idea comes more from cultural hearsay than from a careful reading of the Bible itself. Even a brief reading reveals that the Bible is remarkably broad in its subject matter. The Bible covers the waterfront of human life because the gospel of God's redemption covers the waterfront of human life. In the words of Scripture, God is reconciling all things to himself through Christ (Colossians 1:20). "All things" certainly includes money and material possessions, so it is no surprise to find that the Bible speaks plainly and frequently about these things. There are philosophies that separate reality into "spiritual" and "material" spheres, but Christianity is not one of them. In the Bible, all of life (including the use of money) is spiritual because God is involved in it. Start by reading these key Bible verses on money and stewardship.

Pipe Organs 101

This article is being provided to you for your education about pipe organs. No opinions will be offered concerning St. Timothy's current ongoing organ discussion between the Vestry and the Organ Committee. We continue our class on the pipe organ.

How does the keyboard control the pipes?

The pipes are made to sound when air under a low pressure is blown into the bottom or foot of the pipe. The foot of each pipe sets on a hole on the top of a box-like structure. The box has a separate channel for each note. There is a chamber of low pressure air supplied by a small blower, and a set of valves which control the flow of air into the individual note channels. The proper pipe from each rank sits above the channel for that note, so for example the low C pipe sits above the low C channel which is controlled by the low C on the keyboard. Organ builders call the air supply wind and the chamber the wind chest. In our example, there would be 61 valves leading to 61 separate channels, one for each note. Each valve is opened and closed by playing the corresponding key on the keyboard. The valve is actuated by either a direct mechanical linkage from the key or an electromagnet controlled by the key.

It can be noted that the current music keyboard originated in its present form in the 1300's, thus making it the oldest "standard man/machine interface" in the world!

What is a "stop"?

In the very early days of organ building, all the ranks of pipes were played together and there was no way to separate which types of ranks were used. It's sort of like a big choir where everyone sings together and there weren't any solo voices. Over time, there was a mechanism invented called a slider that was used to stop or isolate a ranks of pipes. The slider was a thin piece of material with holes in it that would run cross-wise to the channels and be underneath the pipes. At the organ console, a lever would move this slider between two positions- one where the holes would line up and allow all the pipes in a rank to receive air from the channels and another where the holes would not line up and thus block the air flow. Because the historical precedence was to have all the ranks on, the slider was viewed as stopping the sounding of pipes. (Besides, having a "start" just doesn't sound right!)

So what are the main sounds an organ can make?

The main sound of an organ is called a "principal" tone. These pipes are straight and are usually the ones that are visible when you look at the organ. Often they are made of highly polished tin, which produces a bright sound and looks nice. The sound is probably most like a modern orchestral flute, which also produces a bright sound, has a long, straight tube, and has a small "attack" sound when the sound is first produced. The initiation of the sound, called chuff can be made somewhat stronger or weaker depending on how the organist plays the keys, and provides articulation to the notes.

The main principal sound is at a range that is called eight-foot (8') pitch. This is because the lowest C on the keyboard has a pipe with a resonating length of 8', and is the same pitch as you have on a piano. If we have a set of 61 pipes, with the low C being 8' long, we can add a second set where the pipes are one-half the length of the 8' stop, so the low C is only 4' long. This second set we will call a 4' Principal or 4' Octave. Each note has its main pitch one octave above the 8' pitch note.

Next month we will continue this class and discuss other ways to change the sound, how an organ builder would use 10 ranks, why organs have several keyboards and pedals, are organs only used in churches, are electronic organs just as good, and what kind of music is available for organs.

30 Days; 50 Miles; Closer To A Cure

I have supported the efforts of the MS Society for many years because I've known a number of friends and relatives who were suffering from this disease. I personally know of 6 people who have MS at this time.

I have been told that every hour of every day, someone is diagnosed with multiple sclerosis. This year it hit home when Cheryl was diagnosed with MS so I decided this year was the year for me to step up my efforts to help this worthy cause.

In honor of the 2.5 million people living with MS worldwide, I have helped to organize a team from St. Timothy's and Herndon United Methodist Church to make a difference by participating in the MS Challenge Walk September 28th thru the 30th. During this three-day, 50-mile journey, hundreds of walkers will travel to the U.S. Capitol to raise awareness and funds to fight MS.

MS is a disease of the central nervous system that wears away the control a person has over his or her body. When someone is diagnosed with MS it can dramatically affect their future, their career and their daily life.

The donations support the National MS Society, which fund more MS research, offers more services for people with MS, provides more professional education programs and furthers more MS advocacy efforts than any other MS organization in the world. The National Capital Chapter of the National MS Society serves more than 18,000 people affected by MS in the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area.

We will be training for our 50-mile walk and your gift would make the sore muscles a lot easier. My team's fundraising goal is $6,000. The MS Society has asked that the donations be made by the 1st of September.

To make a donation, please visit our team or my personal page. This method is the easiest way to donate. If you chose to make a donation of a check or cash, please contact me by phone, 703-437-3968, or e-mail - christopher.brock2@verizon.net. If you are interested in joining our team, please contact me using the above information.

God Bless you for making a difference by supporting our efforts. Sincerely, Chris Brock

From the Music Director

Summer is in full swing and so are plans for our upcoming choral season. The choirs of St. Timothy's will begin their new season on September 4th, preparing for our traditional "Welcome Home" Sunday on September 9th.

We have exciting new opportunities for everyone at St. Timothy's this year. In addition to our St. Cecilia, St. Ambrose, and Handbell Choirs, our new Jubilate Choir will welcome young members ages 8 and older to learn about music, our liturgy, and the Episcopal choral tradition.

Though already established, our St. Cecilia, St. Ambrose, and Handbell Choirs will gladly welcome new members this Fall. Previous musical experience is not required and our choirs are always happy to meet new singers and ringers.

The weekend of September 21-22, our St. Cecilia and St. Ambrose Choirs will meet at the College of Preachers, at the Washington National Cathedral, for their first annual choir retreat. This will give us the opportunity to relax, re-create, and sing together in the beautiful setting of the Cathedral grounds. The retreat will be a fantastic opportunity for new members to get to know current members and will allow time for us to grow and as a group.

Brand new events this year will include a Choral Evensong for the Feast of All Saints on Sunday November 4, at 5:00 p.m. and a Christmas Festival of Nine Lessons and Carols on December 23, also at 5:00 p.m.. Each service will be held at St. Timothy's and will be open to the general public as part of our Concert Series.

As I look towards the coming season with great anticipation, I encourage you all to consider joining one of our ensembles, or to plan on attending what will be uplifting and inspiring new events in the life of St. Timothy's.

—Peter

A Thought on Service

“Whoever wishes to become great among you must be your servant, and whoever wishes to be first among you must be slave of all. For the Son of Man came not to be served but to serve” (Mark 10:43-45).

Working at St. Timothy's as Leslie and the youth prepare for the annual pilgrimage to Appalachia brings to mind my own journeys to Dungannon. During each of the three summers between 2000 and 2002, I was one of a handful of St. Dunstan's youth who joined youth from St. Tim's and other Region V churches on the Dungannon trips. I approached the first trip with extreme trepidation; it was a totally unknown experience, but my parents had given me the choice of either trying that or going back to summer camp, which I definitely did not want to do.

Dungannon was the first time I understood what we mean when, after Communion, we ask God to assist us to “do all such good works as thou hast prepared for us to walk in” (BCP 339). I had found closeness to God in liturgy and pastoral interactions but had not really experienced serving strangers in need as an important part of the Christian life until that first time in Dungannon. There was something indefinably spiritual about doing physical work to improve someone's home and actually interacting with those we were helping.

After leaving Dungannon for the last time, it was nearly five years before I rediscovered that sense of service. This past March, I went to the Dominican Republic with eighteen other members of Canterbury, the Episcopal Campus Ministry at William & Mary. We went to the camp and retreat center of the Episcopal Diocese to shovel debris and clean up the walls of what would soon be classrooms of the school at the camp. Like Dungannon, this week of work was a revelation, finding a new feeling of proximity to God while working, playing with the children who might soon go to this school, and strengthening my friendships. I came back to America with my understanding of mission enhanced: as Christians we are commanded to love one another, and serving others is one way we express our love for them.

I hope that all of you going to Dungannon at the end of this month will similarly find your faith enriched, and I also hope that, as those of you who lately graduated move on to college, you are inspired to seek out opportunities to continue the service you begin in Appalachia. Godspeed!

—John Adams, Intern

Editor's Comments: Washington in July means the 3 "H's" are upon us again and we thank the Lord for the invention of air conditioning. The grass is browning already and my weeds are thriving. If you attend church in other places during your vacation, bring us a copy of their bulletin. Check out Peter's article on the choir plans for the coming Fall and consider joining one of them. I know some of you can sing, because I hear you out there during the summer. Enjoy your vacation!
